

Alexander Stolz, LL.M. (Dresden/Exeter)

Year of birth: 1985

Bar admission: 2015

Alexander Stolz studied law at the Universities of Saarbrücken, Dresden, and Exeter (UK). His main focus is on information, copyright, and media law, having received a post-graduate Masters Degree (LL.M.) in intellectual property law and a professional development certification in sport law. He has authored various publications in these areas. After his attorney training clerkships (including, among others, stations with the legal department of German National Soccer League (DFL Deutsche Fußball Liga GmbH), the state-sponsored national broadcaster Second German Television (ZDF) and an international corporate law firm in Stuttgart), Mr. Stolz was admitted to the bar in 2015 and represents and advises national and international clients both in litigation and in transactional work. His practice includes in particular distribution and contract law, E-commerce regulation, data protection law, and non-technical IP law. Mr. Stolz is lecturer for media law at the Academy of Journalism of the German Federation of Journalists' Education Association (Journalistenakademie des Bildungsvereins des Deutschen Journalistenverbands). In his leisure time, he actively serves as soccer referee and holds various offices in soccer associations.
